Conference Presentation

“Learn to Lead”

by Dr. Jesvir Kaur Mahil, UK

Jesvir’s presentation focuses on the importance of lifelong learning in leadership. We learn in different ways, including through osmosis, immersion in creative environments, and tapping into our innate/instinctual wisdom, which horses can facilitate.

Dr. Jesvir Kaur Mahil

Dr Jesvir Kaur Mahil, the Director of University for Life, is an educator & executive leadership coach with over 40 years' experience in the field of education, currently training and coaching Senior Leader Apprentices in public and private organisations in the UK.

Using an autoethnographic approach, Jesvir has written several books, based on a combination of lived experience and public engagement, including Sikhs of Stafford, Learn to Be Luckier and Learn to Lead, Using Stories, Synthesis and Questions.

Jesvir appreciates the value of EAHAe as a creative ecological space, which stimulates deep insights and generates opportunities for collaborative networks, in the presence of horses stimulating healing, inspiration and transformation in our lives.
